Not a bad little spot, tapas were nice even although most of them were deep fried, however you can understand the reason why when you see how busy it gets. Pizzas are nice, build your own and cooked in a wood fired oven.

All the staff are kept busy and are very friendly and helpful. Worth a visit. read more. What User doesn't like about Kanangra Heights:

Unless you eat pizza, or crumbed nibbles of food the selection here is poor. I attended a night advertised as a all you can eat tapas evening and got 4 very small tapas and a small slice of cheesecake. There was nothing fresh or interesting. Crumbed prawn cutlets and chips just don't cut it. Shame really as the venue is nice. If you are vegeterian or gluten free best avoid. Much better to be had elsewhere read more. The place also offers the possibility to sit outside and have something in nice weather. For breakfast, you can enjoy a diverse brunch at Kanangra Heights, freely at your own will, The yummy sandwiches, healthy salads and other snacks can be planned well as a snack. In conclusion, this restaurant also has a large variety of different already prepared culinary delights to offer, Additionally, they serve you typical Australian meals with products like bush tomatoes and finger limes.
