I loved this place, first because it's impossible to find, drove up and down three times before spotting it, two because it has no pretensions of grandeur locked away in a basement, and three, because the food is awesome. Go try it read more. The restaurant and its premises are wheelchair accessible and thus usable with a wheelchair or physical disabilities, Depending on the weather, you can also sit outside and eat. What Julia Hill doesn't like about Three Williams:

I agree with most of the reviews here except for one thing - three times I went there - twice dining in and once for take away, and all three occasions there was just too much attitude. sure it was great food and fast service but served with attitude kind of outweighs the rest. plus it's way too expensive for a cafe of this type. that's all i have to say about this place. plenty of other very good places around redfe...
