Pale Ale
Inevitable pale. Deep amber colour with a bright bouquet, some loaded with mouthfully balanced hoppiness. It is a far-reaching and a complex fruity character - citrus, grapefruit, passion and lychee. All that flavour and yet brewed from only malted ry, maize, hops and yeast. - GOLD MEDAL 2016 WORLD BEER CONGRESS

Valley Pale Ale
A clear head of Nelson Sacro hops are added late in the boil to the Caramel Pale's signature flavour. The bold grapefruit and citrus fruit flavour from the hops are supported by a firm but not whey-like malt backbone. Special attention has been paid so that it is not harsh but smooth from the hops, finishing off a refreshing easy drinking beer.

Macedon Pale Ale
An award winning New Zealand Nelson Sacro hops, American citra and Citra hops, balanced by a malt base of Australian Vienna. The brew is a classic caramel malt flavour complemented by pine citrus hop aromas. The result is a pale ale of broad appeal.

Sometimes you just need to satisfy your craving for a damn burger. This is true even if you are a vegetarian. The combination of the saltiness of the halloumi and the sweet tomato relish hit all the right spots. Even if you are a meat eater, DA'Burger has something for you. The size of their burgers is more than adequate and you should only need to order fries if you are particularly starving. read more. What Elisaveta Nagy doesn't like about DA'Burger:

My average rating is based on the halloumi burger. It was very heavily loaded with sauce which made the bun extremely soggy. It was really messy and the halloumi was cut too thin. There was a generous amount of halloumi though. It was just really hard to taste anything but sauce and bun. The chips were awesome, as was the mayo. Perhaps a beef or lamb burger would be better.
