During our two day stay, we tried a variety of veg items for dinner like Thai dish Nambhang, veg briyani, veg kabab platter, grilled tofu dish, kadai paneer and all were tasty and each dish enough quantity to serve four. The prices were high for Indian standard, but worth around 8 to 10 US dollars for each dish. Will not recommend baby corn fry. The service was excellent. read more. The premises on site are accessible, and therefore no problem for clientele with wheelchairs or physiological disabilities. What User doesn't like about Water's Edge Cafe:

As i was staying at the radisson blu, we had our complementary breakfast at the waters edge. The restaurant is big in size and had a decent spread, but standard fare that you expect at any luxury resort. The staff is very courteous. The dinner ala carte could take time as most prefer the buffet. The price is a bit high and so i dont think its value for money given that im trying to lose weight We also had lunch here o...
