We were meeting friends in Guildford for lunch so we walked all the way around the corner to Johnny Baker (which is the name of a an old friend of mine who died a couple of years ago) which is another Melbourne blow in local formerly the French Lettuce, I believe. We picked up a family size chicken and leek pie and four pastries an almond croissant, a slice, a berry tart and piece of chocolate cake all for $65 and th... read more. What Lindsay A doesn't like about Johnny Baker:

We are staying at Castlemime for the Easter week end and have heard so much about this place so decided to try it. We found that the variety very limited to only one meat pie variety and one sausage roll all other varieties were vegetarian. The pie I had the only meat option was chunky beef. It was by far the worst pie I have ever eaten it was more jell than meat and it tasted so fake. It was not a good experience at... read more. For quick hunger in between, Johnny Baker from Mount Alexander serves fine sandwiches, small salads, and other treats, as well as hot and cold drinks, Also, there are fresh breads available, complemented by an array of both cold and hot drinks.
