We attended as a party of seven and everyone left happy. The pub has great character and it's hard not to get into party mood once you're seated. The menu has something for everyone and, among our party, no two people ordered the same main meal. Nonetheless, we were all delighted with our selection. Staff are very friendly and able to handle a large table of guests with ease. read more. What User doesn't like about Pratty's Patch:

Staff were extremely friendly and willing to assist with any query. It has a very good country pub feel and very welcoming. The food lived up to the country pub level. Great chips. The lamb was a bit tough and the barramundi was a bit big and lacked flavour. The mash potato was also very good. All in all it was a good experience though. Great history in a great location.
