Being close to the station, this cafe does a good trade in take away coffee, but stopping by for a meal is definitely worthwhile. I had an acai smoothie which hit the spot. I also had the bruschetta with a side of chorizo. My meal was very satisfying. The bruschetta came with crispy kale, feta and a poached egg. The bruschetta wasn't your traditional one with fresh tomatoes, but rather it came with a semi dried tomato... read more. What User doesn't like about School of 7 Bells:
Have been a long time supporter of this group of cafes - have not been to this coffee shop very often but today will ensure I won't be back. A long black was ordered and was so hot that it needed to cups to be held - def not what I would expect. I went back and said it was terrible and asked for cold water to be added because it was too hot and was simply mocked for using the word terrible and a excuse was given abou... read more.
