We go to this Restaurant quite often and we are never let down. It was good to see a couple of new items on the menu. The Penang curry was awesome tasting and a generous size and the new items we will be trying again.

The remaining items were up to the usual standards read more. The restaurant and its premises are wheelchair accessible and thus usable with a wheelchair or physical disabilities, Depending on the weather, you can also sit outside and be served. What User doesn't like about Bua Siam:

The staff are very nice...but as a bit of a foodie, cook and having traveled to Thailand, I would say the food is pretty average and expensive...mmmm not real Thai food..the australianized version. Watered down curries and just average..nothing special...it's a shame because I love to cook Thai food and it's not really that hard..they are rarely busy when we go there early..so not sure what the problem is..
