Took my elderly Mum (100) here for brunch; easy to get to with no steps. Coffee was nice and hot and good. The young waitress spilt the coffee into the saucer when placing on the table and had to be asked to get another saucer. She was happy to have left it; perhaps she's like that at home. Pleasant enough place but nothing to write home about although did have some interesting murals inside. There was a very welcomi... read more.
