We stumbled upon 'Rabbithole' in our quest for a good morning coffee in Darwin- the crowds waiting out the front were a good sign and we were not disappointed with both the breakfast (poached eggs on sourdough with avocado and a very good coffee. This place is small and narrow with all walls and ceiling painted black. We like the relaxed vibe and will definitely try the delicious looking french pastries next time View all feedback. What

User doesn't like about Rabbithole:

Totally overpriced and bad tasting food. The service is also very poor. It's all about the money. Badest experience so far in Australia. Don't waste your money and your time. The coffee was okay, but too small and only a single shot. View all feedback.
