Kri restaurant in Dumaguete has now been replaced by a new place called Don d or something, which has a very interesting menu. The food is good, albeit a bit pricey for the small portions served. However, the high quality makes it acceptable. The beautiful interior design and friendly staff are standout features of the restaurant. The new location has a cozy atmosphere with a larger dining room in the back. They offer a few vegan options, and the vege burger is recommended. Overall, a pleasant dining experience with excellent food quality. Despite some minor issues with service, Kri (now Don d or something) remains one of the best restaurants in town, serving creative international dishes and Filipino cuisine with a twist.
