A recent experience at George's restaurant left diners disappointed due to various factors including midges hovering around the table, unimpressive food quality, slow service, and lack of attention to detail. Despite a request for a different table, the staff was unable to accommodate. The food was described as unsatisfactory, with overcooked pasta and mediocre calamari.

Another group had to negotiate with staff to sit together and express dissatisfaction with the food quality and portion sizes. On a positive note, a diner enjoyed their meal at the restaurant on a cold evening, although they noted that more salad would have been appreciated. Conversely, another review raved about the impeccable service, delicious food, and reasonable prices, highlighting the exceptional care provided by the staff. Overall, while some diners had negative experiences at George's, others found the service and food quality to be more to their liking.
